That Jack Is a Philosopher in His Own Way Shown in Interview in Which He Claims That Ring Results Largely Depend on Mental Condition.

By Robert Edgren.

ATLANTIC CITY, June 20 .- Jack Dempsey hasn't studied any of the schools of modern philosophy, but he has a lot of it in his skin at that. "Jack," I said to him in his training quarters yesterday, "what will you do if you lose to the Frenchman?"

"Why," said Dempsey, "I never thought of it. I suppose I'd shake rands and congratulate him. After that—why, I'd have to figure on that later. "I never even think of losing a fight. I've found out in the ring that whatever you expect comes to you. If I got in there thinking there's a chance the other fellow might knock me out, he'd be likely to knock me That's the way it works. I never care what the other fellow has. The thought in my mind is to get close enough to him to sock. I'm lookfor openings, and when I see one the only thing I think of is to shoot eve through as fast as I can and make something drop. When I hit a and he stays up I'm surprised, because I expect him to drop. But I r waste any time thinking about it. I'm busy looking for another
